Area of transition

Sisteronais-Buëch land is, by nature, an area of transition, located at a crossroads between Dauphiné and Provence, mediterranean and mountainous climates. It is characterized by rural, natural and agricultural features typical of mid-mountain ranges. Wild and sparsely populated, the territory is organized around numerous municipalities and partly covered by the Baronnies Provençales Regional Natural Park. The majority of services and businesses are concentrated in the Buëch and Durance valleys. The economy of surrounding areas is diversified but mainly driven by the farming and tourism sectors. As the only real urban zone within the LAG boundaries, Sisteron city plays a leading role due to its economic size (33% of the LAG businesses, working place for 46% of the active population) and demographic weight (7700 inhabitants).

Local Development Strategy

1. Supporting local stakeholders with energy and ecological transition
2. Increasing the robustness of the local economic fabric and the quality of economic projects
3. Making the territory appealing and welcoming for workers, projects holders and job creators
4. Opening up practices to enhance innovation

Supporting the ecological transition of local economic systems

The 20th century challenges compel us to anticipate and ensure a shift of the economy from traditional forms to sobriety and resilience

Promoting the «industrial and territorial ecology» approach ; Research and Development oriented towards resource efficiency, equipment and skills pooling, creation of a waste sorting and recovery facility or a place shared by different actors of a common sector...

Fostering the desire to live in the Sisteronais-Buëch LAG

The aim is to strengthen the LAG attractiveness for workers and families by improving living conditions and ensuring a better quality of life.

Experimenting new services, creating hybrid spaces, action plans aiming at promoting / providing local high-quality food, biodiversity education and awareness-raising activities, cross-regional cultural initiatives, inter-company mobility plan...
